

Blue Award 2016

International
Student Competition
For Sustainable
Architecture

The Blue Award, an international competition for students of architecture, urbanism and regional planning, and also – in 2016 in its fourth edition – of civil engineering, is intended to reinforce the topic of sustainability in education and to promote young planners who examine social, cultural and ecological sustainability within the framework of university design projects.

It is awarded by the Department for Spatial and Sustainable Design at the Vienna University of Technology and the Society for Architecture and Spatial Design.

AIM

Considering its economic, cultural and social dimensions in architecture, regional planning, urbanism and in construction, sustainable developments should be accorded the same importance as technical and functional issues.

WCTE: Cooperation with the World Conference on Timber Engineering

The results of the fourth edition of the BLUE AWARD 2016 will be awarded and exhibited within the framework of the WCTE. Through the cooperation with the WCTE, this time the Blue Award 2016 will be also announced in the university disciplines of civil engineering, building technology and in particular in timber construction.

Thus projects can be submitted in the categories of urban development and regional planning, architecture, building in existing structures and building construction. Special consideration will be given to teams, i.e. projects that have been developed in cooperation with the disciplines of architecture and civil engineering. On this special occasion, a special prize for timber construction or the use of timber in the context of sustainability will be awarded.
